by a representative group it would carry a certain responsibility. "I have not been in communication with Mayor Curley, nor do I look for a conference. You see, I have been on vacation and out of touch with local political developments. "I regretted that Mr. Fitzgerald was forced to withdraw because of illness. Ely seems to be putting a subtle back on the issue of resignation is light. "The situation seems rather disturbed. I feel that the party hasn't done its level best in registration. I think Senator Walsh disarmed that very cleverly."

"As for me, I don't feel it quite proper to make statements which might be interpreted as an endorsement of myself, because I am not in the slightest manner."

It was apparent that Mr. Ely, in spite of a rush due to accumulated legal duties during his absence in Maine, had given the Democratic party considerable thought in the last 24 hours.

There was something in the atmosphere that indicated overtures might be made to him very soon. No word came from City Hall up to noon today, however.

Mr. Ely is, it is conceded, would be a strong candidate when Mayor of Boston and his legislative activities in behalf of workers' compensation, child labor and kindred measures have made him tremendously popular. He has always been regarded as a liberal and a Democrat of the old line.

TWO HIT CURLEY

The situation has become decidedly acute. Supporters of Joseph E. Ely and John J. Connelley, the two remaining candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, are harping on Mayor Curley for his stand.

They charge the mayor with adopting methods of a party dictator and attempting to usurp the primary rights of the voters. "The latest date now mentioned would be none other than Mayor Curley. It was never said that he would enter the arena to fight it out with Governor Allen."

The Boston Evening American has it on good authority that there is a remote likelihood that Mayor Curley will run. He is too content and now as chief of state of Boston.

Information from the same source indicated that Mayor Curley would not support either Maj. Gen. Logan or Whipple in the gubernatorial race. He is physically unable to take any active part against his Republican foe.

What Mayor Curley's attitude was toward former Mayor Peter Connelley refused to state from the angle of the political middle. "At the present time, Mayor Curley is in the State will stand by Fitzgerald and nominate him on September 12. After which a subject would be retained."

This stand has drawn barbs from the other two candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Ely and Connelley, and Cummings of Boston.

CHARGE DICTATORSHIP

Reports that Mayor Curley would groom Maj. Gen. Logan were discounted today. The former skipper of the Yankee Division stepped quickly as to his intentions with the ally that he was too busy today to attend to the duties of the Tercentenary parade to be held the day after the primaries.

Former Lieut. Gov. Edward P. Barry said Mrs. Logan was too wise and far-sighted to make a general to be a candidate. Intimates of General Logan, however, said that he declined excellent opportunities to win majority or gubernatorial honors and he returned from France.

Peters and Whipple would also be strong candidates if named, but the machine appeared to have no foreign plans.

The announcement made by Henry P. Lawler, president of the Democratic City Committee, that the committee would support Mayor Curley's plan and continue in its efforts to nominate Fitzgerald was assailed today by Ely and Connelley supporters. Lawler's statement also called upon Ely to withdraw.

DONAHUE MUM

Mutterings in these camps were to the effect that Lawler, as lieutenant of Mayor Curley and the Democratic city committee, was not really functioning in that he meetings had been held in the past year.

Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, declined to discuss the question or to give a hint of the attitude of the state committee, but it was regarded as highly significant that he was associated with Ely for some time before the latter issued his statement relative to Fitzgerald's withdrawal.

Election Would Shatter Precedent in Giving Him a Second Term

Concord, N. H., Sept. 10 (AP)—John F. Fitzgerald, of Concord, former Governor, today was the Republican nominee for Governor of New Hampshire.

If elected, Fitzgerald will shatter a precedent of many years in New Hampshire, that a governor should not serve more than one term. After his first term in 1925, he sought re-election but was defeated by Hurlay Spaulding.

Senator Henry W. Fessenden was not opposed yesterday for re-election. The two Republican representatives in Congress, Fletcher and Edward H. Weston, likewise were renominated without opposition.

Albert W. Noone of Peterboro apparently won both Democratic nominations for U. S. senator and governor contests. Returns from 269 delegates for governor show Noone unit, and Frederick E. Small, former mayor of Rochester, 235. The senatorial contest, 203 delegates gave Noone 523, and Amos N. Blanton of Dover, 216.

East Boston, Charlestown, South Boston, Brighton and Hyde Park will furnish to the committee the high school marks of the girls who failed in the tests.

On the other hand, Fayson Smith, state commissioner of education, did not think the results of the examination significant of serious defects in the Boston system. He said that the teachers in our normal schools and in the Teachers' College maintain a high standard as to the quality of the instruction of the girls, graduates of the high schools, out of 26 examined for Teachers' College got 90 per cent on any subject and that but few made scores on one or two subjects, notwithstanding very hard work, and that the girls in the high schools and in the Teachers' College represent the quality of the education in the city.

The chairman of the school board seems to have made a mistake in his investigation of the subject and I feel that on account of the record, which was not so good as he has represented, something should be done. I am not sure that he is justified in this, but I think it is a mistake to place blame on the subject and to feel that on account of the record, which was not so good as he has represented, something should be done."

BOSTON MAN RETURNS FROM ADVENTURE IN AFRICA AND BALKANS

COL. FURLONG STORIES NEW TURKISH

Trek Through Dark Continent to Observe Native Tribes Covers 8000 Miles

After a year of adventure and travel, which reads like some dreamer's fantasy, Col. C. Wellington Furlong, explorer and author, has returned to his Boston home from an 8000-mile trek through Africa and an expedition in the Balkans, Turkey and Asia Minor.

According to the colonel, the trip through Turkey and Asia Minor was undertaken in order to make a complete investigation of the movement in these areas while the primary purpose of the African expedition was to study the primitive tribes of that continent.

From Switzerland Furlong went south through the Balkans into Turkey. At Ankara he studied the development of the new capital and the educational methods including the use of the new Turkish alphabet. At Furlong said he was profoundly impressed with the educational work and the government officials.

600 MILES IN AFRICA

From Cairo he started on his trek which embraced 8000 miles and was covered by boat, lorry and on foot. He was hunting, photographing, collecting game and native customs of the tribes were the main object.

Col. Furlong says that Africa has some interesting primitive tribes which may be of the world. To him it is a land of mystery and interest. It had the smallest type of men and animals in existence as well as the largest. In the equatorial belt there is intense heat and his intakes could in the elevated areas.

STUDIED PYGMIES

The colonel found many relics of the Stanley expedition which he brought back with him to present to some museums. He found tribes with descendants of natives who were founded with the Stanley expeditions and gained much information which he will present in a book and lecture.

Big game hunting occupied much of his time and he was present at a trailing a bull elephant for his time. As he usually traveled light this trek was child's play for him.

He believes his greatest accomplishment was the complete study of the Pygmies in the west of the Sahara. He has brought back with him a complete collection of Pygmy objects.

BRITISH TROOPS IN S. DOMINGO

Santo Domingo, Sept. 10 (AP)—British Marines and the medical staff of the British cruiser Dana landed today to assist Dominican authorities. The marines will observe Dominican troops on guard in the city since the hurricane.

President Trujillo arranged with British Charge d'Affaires Gallienos to have the marines landed. All technicians aboard the warship, as well as the ship's hospital, were faced at President Trujillo's disposal.

For the first time in a week the populace was not hungry today. A mail fleet of relief ships arriving yesterday and trucks which finally broke through the debris from the interior brought food. Relief crews eased out the first mail boat of the 10,000 or more had been hit by hurricane Wednesday blew west of the city away.

Talking Ghost Loses Its Audience as Woman Faints

New Milford, Ct., Sept. 10 (AP)—It's going to be pretty lonesome now for New Milford's talking ghost, who may or may not be the spirit of a negro murdered here 30 years ago.

Crowds numbering as high as 500 have milled about "Old Chitone's" storage shed nightly since the "ghost" started talking through an old radio a week ago. Tonight a woman fainted in the crowd and Old Chitone said a "jour" of the shed henceforth would be locked and visitors barred.

Mother in Battle for Custody of Heiress

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 10—A legal battle for the guardianship of Lynette Baker, 17-year-old Boston heiress, was opened in the probate court today by the girl's mother, Mrs. Lynette D. Baker of West Cedar st., Boston.

The battle for the guardianship was revealed in a $25,000 alienation suit filed here recently by Mrs. Baker against John R. McLane, Manchester attorney. Mrs. Baker charges that McLane "maliciously contrived to deprive her of the affection, confidence and society of her daughter, and induced her to leave the home and society of her mother and alienated the affection and confidence of the daughter toward her mother."

60 MORE JOIN BUY NOW CLUB

New members of the BUY NOW CLUB today include Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy and 60 members of the city's "Massachusetts Improvement Association of Roxbury." Like Calvin Coolidge, Governor Allen, Mayor Curley and hundreds of others, "buy now" members are pledged to purchase necessities now, instead of delaying, in order to stimulate business, create jobs and bring back prosperity.

Secretary George E. Savage of the M. P. Mass Improvement Association, which met at the Rose Crest building, Roxbury, sent the following statement to the Boston Evening American:

"The M. P. Mass Improvement Association at its semi-monthly meeting voted to endorse the movement sponsored by your paper and more than 60 members present agreed to follow the example of the Hon. James M. Curley and make immediate purchase of necessities amounting to $25."

"Several speakers stressed the necessity of helping the present unemployment situation and urged the association to co-operate by making purchases. It is expected that every member shall join the BUY NOW CLUB."

Besides sending signed coupon, scores of citizens have written letters endorsing in similar fashion the campaign to relieve unemployment by buying for household and personal needs.

DISCUSSES ECONOMIES Mayor McGrath of Quincy, going deep into the economic problems involved, writes:

"The movement to BUY NOW is sound economically and if people have the means, consistent buying will speed up production and in this way aid employment."

"The trouble is not so much a lack of interest in buying but a lack of purchasing power. If we could revive industry and employment there would be no problem as to the willingness of the average citizen to put his dollar in circulation."

"Perhaps if some of the credit that are daily poured into the stock markets were used in enterprises which would prevent any depression might be relieved."

MAN BACK FROM ARCTIC

Wiscasset, Me., Sept. 10 (AP)—Lieutenant-Commander Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, returned here today in the auxiliary schooner Bowdoin, after his thirteenth trip into the Far North.

The explorer's party, which included Chicago boys, besides the veteran crew of the Bowdoin, cruised for 600 miles and accomplished three major objectives of the expedition.

Preference on Jobs to Men Over Forty

Baltimore, Sept. 10—Men over 40 will be given preference on jobs by members of the Oil Trade Association, composed of all the large oil companies, employing hundreds of men at service stations and on other operations, according to an announcement by the association today.

This decision followed a report by the Association of Commerce, which revealed that persons more than 40 years old were particularly affected by the unemployment situation, while carrying the largest family, home and social responsibilities.

The proprietors, said to be Boston men, took out all their best making apparatus, and raw stock during the night and left the city. Also they took machinery belonging to the owner of the building, in Laws road.

One of the "barons" is said to have offered Paramount Pictures $100,000 to see his transit who told him they planned a soap factory, they were missing his machinery.

Watching the place for days, police were powerless to act as no beer actually had been brewed.

BRITISH LAIDS HEARST'S NAVY PACT EXPOSE

"Publication of Anglo-French Secret Accord a Patriotic Service," Says Leader

By GEORGE HINMAN, JR. Universal Service Special Cable Paris, Sept. 10.—Representative Fred W. Britten of Illinois, chairman of the House committee on naval affairs, was emphatic today in his statement that William Randolph Hearst did a great service for the American people in exposing the secret naval pact between France and Great Britain.

In commenting on the recent action of France in expelling Mr. Hearst, Representative Britten said: "Whatever may be the case in Europe, the people of America have not forgotten exactly what William Randolph Hearst did in giving them the text of the Anglo-French naval accord."

"At the very moment when Secretary Kellogg was in Paris to sign a treaty outlawing war, France was working with England to get the better of us on the seas, well knowing we had a strong pacifist sentiment at home."

"I believe that President Coolidge, by the State Department, from a private source what France and England were planning to do, but for diplomatic reasons could not announce the fact to the people and so involve them of our continued need for a powerful navy. They were helpless."

Mr. Hearst came to their aid. He got hold of the actual treaty and published it. He let the American people read it and judge for themselves.

"He did his country, the American people and their government a very patriotic service."

"He has been expelled from France for having done it."

M. MONOPOLY CHARGED IN SUIT

Charges that the Paramount Public Corporation has monopolized, or attempted to monopolize, a part of the motion picture trade or commerce among the several states, was contained in a $200,000 damage suit filed in Federal Court here today against the corporation by Arthur and Bernard Brewster, attorneys for the Strand Amusement Company of Portland, Me.

The declaration set forth that the Strand Company was earning a substantial profit in its theater on Congress street, Portland, until it was interfered with, on an alleged basis, by the "Paramount Public Corporation."

The declaration charged that the Paramount Public Corporation acquired films, studios and corporations in which motion pictures are shown, with a view to monopolizing the motion picture business by eliminating competition in the manufacture of motion pictures, by purchasing business outright or by acquiring stock control. This case is returnable in December.

Mayor of Boston, England, Started Life as Printer

Boston, Eng., Sept. 10—Reuben Salter, first Labor Mayor of Boston, is now en route from Southampton with Councilors Bailey, Tait and Mountain to attend the biennial celebration of Boston, Mass.

Mayor Salter started life as a printer's apprentice. Then he took a job on a newspaper. He became a master printer. Now he owns a big wholesale news agent's business and a large dry goods store.

In his spare time he works on his "allotment" and produces vegetables for the family.

He is a self-made man in the best sense of the expression, not given to talking and entirely unaffected.

Nine years ago he became a town councillor and a county councillor. He is also a Methodist local preacher and a past provincial master of the Order of Odd Fellows.

"Boston," he says, "is the most prosperous little town in Britain. Last year I established the town council's control over the markets and we made over $4000 profit. And we have taken over the town and made a profit on his own over $65,000 last year—and all this goes to the relief of municipal taxes."

ARREST FORMER OFICIALS OF ARGENTINE

Martial Law and Censorship Are Tightened to Prevent Counter-Revolution

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10 (AP)—Enrique Perez Colman, minister of finance in the Irigoyen cabinet; Gen. Mosconi, former director of oil fields; Elpidio Gonzalez, former minister of finance; Gen. Baldrich and a number of deputies supporting the Irigoyen regime, were under arrest today by the provisional government of Gen. Uriburu.

The new government today adopted the most severe measures to prevent reprisals and counter-revolutionary movements by friends of Irigoyen.

Rules by martial law was tightened. Heavy guards were maintained at strategic places in the city and public buildings. Elements of troops through the streets and in the suburbs were increased. At the same time a census of more than 100,000 persons was being taken. Hereafter was increased.

Among the latest to be arrested are the former interventor of Mendoza, Yrigoyen, and the personnel of his administration. Other high figures of the deposed Irigoyen regime have escaped to Uruguay and elsewhere.

Gen. Uriburu, who was minister of war under President Alvear, is believed to be in charge of all military forces of the republic.

HANGAR IS UP FOR SALE

Because engineers have planned a way to combine the company workshop with the main hangar, the Curtis-Wright Flying Services put up for sale today its $100,000 service hangar at Boston airport. This hangar, at the northwest approach to the airport, is a practical proposition because its hangar is declared to be antiquated and a fire hazard. Curtis-Wright believes its work on planes can be done more efficiently if the workshop is located at the main hangar.

Terms Use of Children as Liquor Spies an Outrage

Editor Boston American:

The latest development in prohibition enforcement is the scheme to have small children to act as spies near the place that is under suspicion. They should simulate playing while they keep their eyes on prohibition criminals. From an educational viewpoint this is an outrageous thing to do. No sensible parents should permit their children to do such a thing. There seems to be no limit to the absurdities connected with the enforcement of this nonsensical law. Why not have a nurse pushing a baby buggy near a booze joint? Would she not make a good witness?

Lands Quincey as Entertainer of Mayors

Editor Boston American:

"Quincey" the City of Granite and member of the "Mass. Federation of Municipalities" will not act as host to divers mayors coming with the "American Legion" next month. You see we are commencing to think in terms of mayors and putting kings, temperance and saloons in the ash can. "Only cities exist," because they are realities, and the Hope of Democracy. Congratulations to Quincey, the Granite City and one of the corner stones of civilization.

Pleads for Proper Care for Animals

Editor Boston American:

Please find the following reply to a letter from Geo. F. Fredricks: "Too bad about you! Do you happen to know that there is a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and that children everywhere are well taken care of?"

Where everyone cares for children, there are only a very few that care for animals.

N. J. Walker was merely suggesting that people don't leave their animals to starve or freeze—which they most certainly do.

The people that can afford the luxury of a long vacation should be able to afford a decent disposal of their unwanted animals. They ought not to be left.

In the cities, too, cats are most cruelly treated, and I, for one, heartily wish they could all be killed to end their terrible suffering—and some dogs and horses, too.

Hundreds of cats and kittens are in fearful condition—they are starved to death by brutal boys as soon as they stagger from want of food.

If there was half as much done for animals as for children, there would be less misery for animals—chiefly cats—helpless creatures, so lovable if taken care of.

Editor Boston American:

I am writing you to tell you that was a wonderful editorial you had in tonight's paper about "Power" in Politics, and I hope the people will be strong enough soon to throw down their big politicians and get in the laborer's insurance bill and a five-day week and eight-hour day. I hope your paper may have an editorial on my letter here.

Glad to Know Ex-Pastor Barrett Swims at 92

I am glad to see that my friend, Rev. Luther G. Barrett, Harvard oldest graduate, goes swimming at 92 years.

Over a year ago he told me that he must give it up, though he enjoyed swimming better than any other recreation. I told him he was not waterlogged yet. So I am pleased to notice in your paper that at Oak Bluffs he has again called on the fish down there. They know him well, for nearly every summer he has acquainted them with his splashing stroke.

He told me several years ago that he accounted for his prolonged good health by swimming in salt water.

He is a well-known Baptist minister, living in retirement at Melrose, and was at one time president of a large southern college.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Do women work harder at their different tasks than men?

This was an offhand discussion before a group of business men gathered in a clubroom with cigar smoke biting the atmosphere around them. One speaker took the side of women, declaring women have always worked. They have worked harder than men, and taking women in general they are doing and have done more actual heavy work, manual and burden bearing, than men. This was a world vision of women in all countries.

They are cutting in on the employment of men in the labor world. Much unemployment today is due to women taking men's positions in all types of business.

This statement was backed by quoting from Germany, where 6,000,000 more women were employed in 1920 than 20 years ago.

Thirty-six percent of all persons employed in Germany today are women, and one-third are classes as unskilled labor. It was evident in this discussion that women would eventually limit the work of men and stabilize unemployment among men. What do you readers think?

A friend said to me the other day:

"What is a more beautiful spot in the East than Boston's Charles River Basin at twilight?"

ENTERPRISE BOOM O. K.'D

Newport, R. I., Sept. 10 (INS)—It was definitely decided today that Enterprise's controversial and exceedingly tricky boom will be used in her during her forthcoming races against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V for possession of the America's cup.

The boom brought a protest from the J. P. Morgan syndicate that owns Westam, one of the discarded contenders.

Shamrock V with her hull newly encased in a brilliant coat of emerald green, rode high and beautiful today on the ways of the Williams & Manchester yards here.

Shamrock will slide back into the waters of Breton's cove this evening and will be ready for what the fate hold for her in trying to lift the America's cup.

Enterprise will go to the Harrosham yards in Bristol this afternoon for her last hauling out.

DRAPER CAN LINE UP INDEPENDENTS FOR G. O. P., SAYS YOUNG

PARADE AND RALLY MARK REEF TO SENATORIAL CANDIDATE IN NEWTON

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

With a typical election victory celebration, even to a street parade, Draper Day was observed in Newton last night.

Following the parade, a rally was held in the high school auditorium with more than 1200 attending.

OPponents REFUSED
A group of Butler workers, who arrived in a fleet of automobiles, attempted to distribute handbills at the school but were driven off by police.

At the rally, B. Loring Young, former speaker of the House, made his first appearance on the stump for Draper. Young was the party's nominee for senator two years ago.

HOLD INDEPENDENTS
"Draper's nomination," he said, "will hold to the party ticket thousands of independent voters who support of the Democratic candidate caused the defeat of the Republican candidate in 1926 and 1928."

After paying a glowing tribute to the character of Draper, Young declared that the party needs young, aggressive and liberal leadership in the senate.

"If we send Draper to Washington we can count on a long and distinguished career, each year increasing in strength and influence," he continued. "Six years in the state legislature, two years in France, have proved his will and his capacity to serve the state and nation.

"His campaign is based on sincerity and honesty."

"He would never stoop to the winning of votes by unfair methods or half truths."

STATES RIGHTS FLEA
"The greatest danger to American government today is the constant encroachment of the federal government on the rights and liberties of the states. Draper is opposed to this tendency. He will help Massachusetts retain her independence and freedom of action in her own affairs. Let us hasten before we transfer any more powers of government to Washington."

The candidate, in a short address, again pointed out the impracticability of his opponent's proposal for a national labour law. Such legislation, he declared, could be declared unconstitutional by the courts.

Mayor Sinclair Weeks declared Draper's opponent could look forward to one term at best because of his age. Because the Democrats will nominate a wet, he said, Draper is the only man who can win.

The meeting was presided over by Charles B. Floyd. He said 600 Newton men had pledged themselves for the candidate two hours a day for seven days.

Mrs. Ellis Spear, Jr., chairman of the Newton Draper women's committee, appealed to the women to vote for Draper regardless of their personal views on some of the issues.

In a letter to Draper last night William Phillips, former United States under-secretary of state, former ambassador to Belgium and first American minister in Canada, endorsed the Hopkinton man's candidacy.

Santososso on Air
Asks His Election
His career as physician and lawyer was outlined in a radio broadcast over WNAAC last night by Joseph Santososso, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State.

He received the degree of doctor of medicine at Tufts at the age of 22 and practiced medicine and surgery for nearly 10 years.

During the last three of which he studied law in his spare time. He was Jos. Santososso admitted to the bar 20 years ago.

He was nominated for the school committee on three occasions and served four years in Boston City Council. Two years ago he was unanimously nominated and elected alternate-at-large to the national convention which nominated Alfred E. Smith. As Democratic nominee for state secretary in 1928 he received 48,325 votes.

'My Father Treated Like a Pickpocket at Butler's Orders'—Lodge's Daughter

THE LETTER of Constance Williams, daughter of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, to Eben S. Draper follows:

"South Hamilton, Massachusetts.

"DEAR MR. DRAPER—I see, by the daily press, that Mr. Wm. M. Butler has asserted:

"(A) that he and my father, the late Henry Cabot Lodge, were always friends;

"(B) that my father wished Mr. Butler to succeed him in the U. S. Senate, and

"(C) that all the 'stories' told about the 1924 convention at Cleveland were exaggerated."

"There is not a word of truth in any of these statements."

"Mr. Butler's hostility to my father was in good working order in 1923 when he supported Draper and not Lodge for the Republican nomination to the U. S. Senate."

"When Lodge ran for the Senate in 1922, he was told that Butler and his outfit would support him if he would retire in favor of Butler at the end of the term."

"My father said to me:

"That crowd of Butler's want me to promise to get out and let Butler in. NOT EXCEPT OVER MY DEAD BODY!"

"In 1924 the Republican convention was held at Cleveland."

"My father was a senator of Massachusetts, and had been so for 31 years; he was rich in years and honors and had given long and honorable service to his country and his State."

"He arrived at Cleveland to find himself treated like a pickpocket at the orders of Mr. Wm. Morgan Butler, the chairman at that time of the Republican committee."

"It was carried so far that his accommodations were unfit and insufficient; and his one-time secretary, the late Louis A. Coolidge, insisted on changing rooms with him."

"That convention was in June of 1924, and in November of 1924 my father died."

"It has always been the belief of Lodge's family and friends that this treatment of an old and distinguished public man, with years of devoted service behind him, was a deliberate act of revenge for Lodge's refusal to make way for a substitute in exchange for Butler's help in 1922."

"If anyone is thinking of voting for Mr. Butler because he says he is the logical successor of Henry Cabot Lodge's, be or she, had better think again. They would be voting under a total misapprehension of the truth."

"This letter of mine is true in every word, and you are at liberty to make any use of it you may desire."

"With every good wish, I am, sincerely yours,

"CONSTANCE WILLIAMS."

"Sept. 8, 1930."

Lodge's Daughter Is Wrong, Says Butler

William M. Butler authorized the following statement today:

"My attention has been called to the letter of Mrs. Constance Williams in the Boston American addressed to Mr. Draper. I regret that she is under a misapprehension with reference to the matter of my relations with her father, Senator Lodge."

"I repeat that Senator Lodge and I were good friends."

"I have been told by Senator Moore, and he has publicly asserted, that Senator Lodge told him that his successor in the Senate should be elected in the manner in which the seat became vacant would be William M. Butler. I have never made this assertion by reason of any statement of Senator Lodge to me."

FOOTED LODGE
"As to the matter of Mr. Lodge's election in 1922, the records show I voted for Mr. Lodge."

"In 1923 I had no thought whatever of becoming a candidate for the United States Senate nor had anyone else. I was for Mr. Lodge. I supported him in 1922, and I had much to do with his campaign, which I know he appreciated. He was warm in his expressions of appreciation for what I did for him."

"As to the Republican convention in 1924 and the incidents which are related by Mrs. Williams' letter, I had nothing whatever to do with this. I never issued any orders in having Senator Lodge given the consideration to which his position as a senator from Massachusetts for many years entitled him."

"I regret that I am impelled to make the above statement, but out of my respect for Senator Lodge I must decline to enter into any further controversy with his daughter."

writes in her letter, 'That crowd of Butler's want me to promise to get out and let Butler in. Not except over my dead body.'

Coming then to the 1924 convention in Cleveland, she charges that Butler, then chairman of the Republican national committee, 'ordered Lodge "treated like a pickpocket".'

The grudge against Lodge, she asserts, was carried to such an extent that the late Louis A. Coolidge, his one-time secretary, insisted on exchanging rooms with him because of the snuff and inadequate quarters assigned him."

"That convention was in June of 1924 and in November of 1924, my father died," she pointed out.

BLAMES REVENGE
Revenge, she claims, was the motive behind this treatment accorded to "an old and distinguished statesman, with years of devoted service behind him."

She warns those who are thinking of voting for Butler because of his declarations of friendship for Lodge, that they are laboring under a "total misapprehension of the truth."

In his denial of the charges that was unfriendly to Lodge, Butler declared that Mrs. Williams was laboring under a misapprehension in the facts in the case. He indicated that out of respect for the late senator he had no intention of engaging in a controversy with Lodge's daughter."

The Williams letter, or expose, promises to have a far-reaching effect upon Butler's chances in the primary. It is certain to split still further the Republican organization, already disrupted by defections to the Draper camp."

Lodge's followers never have forgiven the slight put upon the man they considered as one of the nation's greatest, at the 1924 convention.

LODGE FOUGHT LEAGUE
The Williams letter is the first public utterance on the matter by any member of the late Senator's family, and it bares a hatred of Butler that apparently never will be healed."

Senator Lodge's fight against the League of Nations was one of the milestones of his distinguished public service, which covered more than a quarter of a century. Up to the Cleveland convention, he had been since 1900, with the exception of the year when his friend, Col. Roosevelt, caused the Bull Moose split, either temporary or permanent, chairman of his party conventions, or chairman of the most important committee."

But when 1924 came along Lodge was unceremoniously relegated to any office nor named on any committee. He sat in for the first time in his party deliberations as a private soldier."

After the organization of the Massachusetts delegation broke up Lodge, seen by newspapermen, said:

"Of course I am the best friend the President has in Washington."

But that the hurt went deeper, seen in the revelation of his daughter's letter, that his breakdown followed closely upon this incident. In the middle of his term he died."

And "over his dead body," as he predicted, William M. Butler was given the nod. Lodge passed away November 13, 1924. Governor Cogswell, November 13, the same year, appointed Butler to fill the unexpired term."

PLANE SCHOOLS CLOSED FOR WINTER

By GEORGE HANBLIN
A successful summer season completed, the resident flying schools of Curtiss-Wright and Skyways have been closed, and all equipment transferred to the Boston Airport bases of the companies.

Nearly 50 students took instruction at the two schools, with Skyways having trained Miss Alice DuPont. Miss DuPont obtained her private license, and then continued piling up hours.

Curtiss-Wright made the last trip to the Cape on their regular schedule, and now operate a special charter service to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket.

Allan B. Sherman, chief pilot for Curtiss at the Vineyard, Edward Dungan, operations manager, and the flock of mechanics are continuing their work at the Boston field. Olcott R. Payson, vice-president of Skyways, and chief pilot at the Barnstable summer school, is contemplating a trip with his pontoon Stearman before taking up his duties with the traffic department.

"We have enjoyed a season which exceeded our fondest expectations," said Edward Brower, of Skyways, today. "Immediate action will be taken to outline our plans for next season, when we hope to enlarge our school at Barnstable still further."

Aviation Corp. of New England has completed service arrangements at the Palmouth Airport, according to Walter Rogers, president of the company. A metal hangar and shop have been completed, and Bill Denney, operations manager, has a crew of mechanics on the field.

Delivery of a new plane, the name of which Rogers would not reveal, is expected this week.

Council of 10 for Governor of Rome

Rome, Sept. 10 (AP)—An advisory council to assist the governor of Rome, who has hitherto been virtually absolute in power and reported only to the king, was instituted today in the capital. It is called the "Consiglio" of Rome and is composed of 10 members.

Gas Fumes From Silo Kill 5 in One Family

Hebron, N. D., Sept. 10 (AP)—Poisonous fumes, which turned a silo into a tunnel of death, had claimed five members of the Tony Neidhardt family today.

The victims were Tony Neidhardt, Hebron farmer, and two sons and two daughters, who died in a vain attempt to save the father from the gas vapor. George, 24, was taken unconscious from the silo yesterday, but died while physicians were attempting to save his life.

Otto Bohle, town marshal, nearly lost his life in an effort to rescue the victims, but was saved after he had collapsed in the silo by his son, Waldo, 16, who entered the death pit twice to tie a rope around his father's unconscious form. A group outside then drew Bohle to safety. No inquest will be held, the coroner said, as the deaths were obviously caused by methane gas generated in cornstalks. The gases were released when Neidhardt stirred the refuse as he was cleaning out the pit.

TERRIFIC RAIN FLOODS BOMBAY

Bombay, Sept. 10—The worst flood in the last 100 years inundated Bombay today after a terrific downpour of rain that lasted 34 hours. The city, submerged in 21 inches of muddy water that poured like a biblical flood out of mucky ceilings, was virtually paralyzed and isolated. Traffic splashed through the flooded streets in some sections, but for the greater part all vehicular activity was at a standstill.

ANDREE'S DIARY BARES FIGHT FOR LIFE

By RNET STUBENDORFF
Universal Service special correspondent with the Hearst-Examiner newspaper expedition to White Island, Arctic death place of the members of the Andree balloon expedition to the North Pole.

(Copyright, 1930, by Thomas Nelson, Inc.) In all inquiries about Andree and his crew, all rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.

Special Cable Dispatch
Aboard R. S. Johnson, bound for Tromsø, Sept. 10.—The Andree balloon expedition to the North Pole landed three days and five hours after taking off from Dronning Island, Spitzbergen, 33 years ago. Sakenon Auguste Andree, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel trudged over Arctic ice and rode on an ice floe for three months before they died.

These are the facts of the Andree expedition dug from an Arctic island by the Hearst-Examiner-Nyherst search expedition to White Island, where Dr. Gunnar Horn and the crew of the Bratvaag made the first Andree discovery.

It was Strindberg's diary that was found by the first Andree-Nyherst search expedition.

On July 19, five days after they descended from the air, the first ice-boat was shot. Three days after that, on July 22, the long march southward was begun.

"Sept. 16.—The attempt to walk further was given up."

The party of three drifted on an ice floe until September 17, when they caught sight of the glacier of White Island.

In their day, they made an Arctic festival of the occasion on their ice boat near White Island. The feast consisted of:

"Seal steak, seal liver, seal brains, seal kidneys, butter and Schumacher's bread (Swedish bread), catenae and raisins, raspberries, sauer, and port wine for dessert."

They built a little snow hut on that ice floe, and on October 2, almost three months after they left off, that was broke up, and their little hut was gone.

On October 6, a tremendous snow storm descended.

There is only one more entry in the diary.

"Revelation." After the last entry, "Home-fore a m." on October 17, 1897, Strindberg is believed to have died, to have gone "home" to his Maker.

Home After 33 Years in Arctic

Mrs. Doran Reveals Mrs. Hoover's 'Dry' Recipe

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP).—Mrs. James M. Doran, who announced she would fight for prohibition enforcement by making fruit juices enticing, is author of "Prohibition Punches," a book available today.

Her "1930 cocktail," served as "refreshment" to her husband's enforcement program, is included with recipes of many other prominent persons.

"Portia's Punch" was the title given that of Mahel Walker Willibrand, Lenora Lowe Yost, in charge of women's activities of the Republican Party, contributes "Spiced Punch."

Gen. Smoot D. Butler, one of the few male contributors, offers tea as the base for his drink.

Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, Mrs. Seymour Lowman, Mrs. Anna Davis and Mrs. John F. Shippe, president-general of the Federation of Women's Clubs, are among others.

Of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, "Prohibition Punches" says:

"The first lady likes her punches made with plain spring water (neither mineral nor charged), sweetened to taste, and added to it oranges, lemons, grapefruit, tangerines, kumquats and berries."

The late Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert, wrote the preface.

ITALIAN CLAIMS CANCER CURE
Bologna, Italy, Sept. 10 (AP).—A purported cure for cancer was communicated to the Congress for the advancement of science here today by Prof. Fichera of the University of Bologna.

Fichera, who has specialized in this field for 10 years, says he has a cure that involves the injection of a chemical under the skin of the patient to work its way to the tumor and gradually destroy it, leaving only a scar.

Photographs and X-ray pictures, taken every two days and showing the progress of destruction of the tumor, were produced by the professor in support of his claims.

Find Franklin Camp Sites in Arctic
Edmonton, Alta. Sept. 10 (AP).—Discovery of King William Island of two camp sites of the lost expedition of Sir John Franklin has added another chapter to the story of long-missing Arctic explorers.

Word of the discovery was received by radio from W. E. Gilbert, pilot for Major L. T. Burwash, Canadian government explorer on an airplane expedition to the region of the magnetic pole.

The discovery gave no details of the find, but said valuable data concerning the far north and the fate of the Franklin expedition which sailed for the north 55 years ago, had been obtained.

Gilbert and Gilbert left Edmonton Aug. 28 for the purpose of determining the extent of the shift of the magnetic pole and in aid of the Franklin expedition.

Sir John Franklin, British naval officer, set out in May, 1845, with two ships and a company of 125 officers and men to discover a northwest passage.

The ships, the Terror and the Erebus, were last seen at the entrance of Lancaster sound. It was 14 years later that first intimation of their subsequent fate was obtained. Later searches found relief and skeletons on King William Island which established that survivors of the expedition, after loss of their ships, had attempted march by communicating with Red Cross headquarters, 347 Commonwealth ave.

Stratton and Ward Star in Charles River Golf

FAVORITES ADVANCE IN FOUR-BALL

By BILL GRIMES
Charles River's first invitational four-ball tournament was off to a howling success with 54 pairs and not a single default in the first round this morning.

The players were greeted with exceptionally fine weather and a splendidly continental course. There were few upsets in the first round of match play.

Nearly all of the matches finished in the vicinity of the home green, with but one or two being one-sided affairs.

Elmer Stratton was the individual star of the morning, playing superb golf. He needed but three pars for a 69, three under par for the course.

Elmer Ward Goes Around in 74

Elmer Ward, N. E. champion, was next best in individual scores, doing the course in 74 strokes. Needless to state, both were on the winning side in their matches.

Several matches went to the 19th hole, among them the Hopkins and Smith vs. Marcy and Paul match. The former pair were four up at the 15th, but lost the 17th, and 18th when both Hoppy and Smith proceeded to three-putt to square the match.

Hopkins' four on the 19th decided one of the favorite pairs in the tournament.

Eastern Magnates Discuss Series Plans

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP)—Secretary Carroll B. Mayon of the Eastern League announced here tonight that the owners of the Bridgeport and Allentown Clubs would meet tomorrow afternoon in Bridgeport to discuss details and plans for the championship play-off series.

The Allentown Club won the first round championship, and the Bears appear to have the second match lined up, needing but a couple of more victories to clinch matters.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

Ben Ticknor, who captains the Harvard football team this fall, made his competitive golf debut in this section yesterday at Oakley. He showed ability to "hit 'em" on the gridiron can't compare with his hitting ability on the links.

Miss M. M. Kennedy and Charlie Crane, Commonwealth, walked through a bird of 12 pairs to win the Oakley mixed foursome tournament. Miss Kennedy and Crane were out in 38 and scored 10 in 38 to a 5-5 finish. One of the outstanding features was the 20-foot putt Miss Kennedy dropped for a ace at the 12th hole.

The Blue Hill Country Club is being primed for the annual two-day open handicap medal play tournament scheduled for Friday and Saturday. Blue is one of the best teams of golf in this vicinity, for there are few courses calling for better second shots than at Canton. There are 13 playable holes at Blue Hill, but the other six will be ready next season.

Billy Duffy and Fred Wright will take on Elmer Ward and Eddie Morgan of Norfolk next Sunday at Albemarle. The Duffy-Wright team is one of the smoothest functioning four ball combinations in our midst. And they expect to do a job on the New England amateur champion and the Norfolk professional.

Without a single dissenting voice, everyone who has seen Jesse Guilford in action of late agrees that the "Swiss Gun" is hitting his shots better than he has for years. Jesse is very anxious to establish himself in the eyes of the golfing world in the coming national amateur championships at Merion, and if he carries the game to Philadelphia that he has been playing here for the past month, he will positively gain his objective.

Dave Mackney, Vesper, and Bobby Crowley, Kenosha, staged a fine comeback in the qualifying round of the P. G. A. Championship, when they came through in cards in the 50th for the morning round.

Although Billy Duffy of Albemarle is one of the busiest professionals in New England, he is always ready and willing to do anything in his power to help the amateur.

Sewell of Indians Out for Season
Cleveland, Sept. 10 (AP)—Luka Sewell, veteran catcher for the Cleveland Indians, will be out of the game for the rest of the season. He suffered a broken finger on his right hand as the result of a foul tip off Harry Rice's bat in yesterday's game with the Yankees.

Delaware Water Gap, Pa., Sept. 10 (US)—Al Singer entrained for New York, brimful of confidence in his ability to defeat Jimmy McLarnin in their scheduled 10-rounder at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.

He concluded three weeks of rough, tough citizen's training by doing 12 rounds of work. He did no boxing, his punches the small and big bags, shadow boxing, and finished up with rope skipping and calisthenics.

Singer says: "I am in wonderful condition. I never felt better in my life. I have a world of confidence in my ability to knock the aside from under my opponent's feet. I trained three weeks and I worked hard, in fact harder than for any other fight in my career because I appreciate I am meeting a

Upon concluding training today, McLarnin jumped on the scales to register at the 151 mark. He expects to weigh a half pound more on the official scales tomorrow order to beat Clamnet Stone in the second heat.

Benefit Show for Searles at East Boston Tomorrow

"Nixie" Searles was a "go through" guy... A few short weeks ago, "Nixie" was feeling happy to be alive and able to do a favor for a friend. Today the situation is reversed, for his friends are being asked to "carry on" for "Nixie."

This East Boston lad, known as "Nixie" had a friend to any one who would help.

Roslindale Needs Only One More Win
Roslindale edged out in front in the Greater Boston Two League championship series when it defeated Malden, 9 to 8, at Fallon Field.

The win gave Roslindale three wins to two for Malden, and the last year's champs now need but one more victory to win the championship in the advance sale, forslipship.

Great Britain's foresight in asking that she be given a parity on the Panama Canal has been emphasized by recent figures of canal traffic. Of the 1741 vessels of 24 nations making 6135 transits during the fiscal year of 1930, the British ranked first in number and second in tonnage.

150,000 men^{*}
can't be wrong!

To be real accurate it's 150,420 respectable citizens who have found Bond Ten Payment Budget Service the ideal way to purchase Fine Clothes—and who are backing their first good impression with second and third visits. And all in less than 2 short years!

What is responsible for such immediate acceptance?

How do we account for such phenomenal growth?

The answer is simple! When we invite a man to "charge it" we do not ask him to pay anything extra for this convenience. We refuse to add to our prices those rather mysterious "overhead expenses" so long a part of old-fashioned charge account and credit methods.

Our cash prices of yesterday are our Ten Payment prices of today! And the economy of cash prices certainly needs no introduction to thrifty men.

We figured such a sensible plan would win enough friends to pay for itself. It has!

And it has done more! The added business of 150,000 men has worked like a charm! It has put finer wools into Bond Clothes. It has brought over the master fashions of London's most distinguished tailors. It makes possible the luxury of faultless hand needlework.

Naturally, we are eager for you to enjoy all these advantages of Bond Ten Payment Budget Service. And we cannot think of a more opportune time to extend this invitation — with all our new Fall Suits and Topcoats in handsome array. Prices? $25, $35, $45, and every suit has two pairs of trousers.

Bond Ten Payment Budget Service asks you to pay only $10 at purchase, the balance in ten equal weekly payments. Use it when you buy your Fall Clothes!

Boston's "Lucky Girl" ONE OF THE MOST THRILLING SERIALS EVER WRITTEN by Hazel Huntington

Cathie Cries Self to Sleep, Carries Burden of Grief to Mother

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Catherine Paige, elder daughter to a fabulously wealthy, married her wealthy, elderly employer, Alfred Farnsworth as the only way out of her financial difficulties.

"Is there anyone else, anyone you love?" he asked her before the wedding. Cathie said no. It was true, for she could hardly count Gordon Moore, who once paid her attention and then forgot her. Some realization of the enormity of this step she has taken comes to Cathie soon after entering the house which is now her home. Farnsworth's son, Chester, and his bride frighten her. Farnsworth warns ("this against the maid. This worries her, and Cathie becomes lonely and homesick.

On her way up to the maid's room, Cathie overheard a conversation between the maid and Dr. Fisher. The maid is demanding money. The situation depresses her and the news that Gordon Moore, whom she secretly loved so long, is to be cured in the house worries her still more.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 18

COVETED, too, King Features Press, Inc. CATHERINE FARNSWORTH lay in her silver and turquoise bed, and listened to the Westminster chimes on the hall clock chime out every quarter of an hour. She had left the door of her bedroom ajar. She felt so shut off, so isolated, in that big room with the door shut.

There were so many queer noises in the night. Creaks and squeaks and—she could have sworn it—sometimes the faint, shrill piping of a flute. High and far away—a faint, mournful singing note . . . wild . . . disturbing . . .

Cathie wasn't superstitious and she wasn't going to get upset imagining things. Still, she liked to leave the door ajar, and to listen for the faithful, melodious chiming of the clock on nights like this when she could not sleep.

Silly to Worry

It was silly to be awake worrying. Cathie knew that. But she was worrying to worry about. Mr. Farnsworth would think she was crazy if he knew why she cried, like a big, overgrown baby when he told her that Gordon Moore was coming to stay with them for a while. And Moore . . . he'd laugh. He would anyone else who loved her, and he was good to her. . . . Until "with heart. That was the promise, and that was the promise she was going to keep, no matter what.

Besides, nothing was going to happen. Moore was coming to stay, and she certainly wasn't anything to him. Miss Darrow said she was shocked to hear of her marriage. . . . "Oh, I did she care. After she was married, and had everything in the world to make her happy! Everything! Everything!"

Maid a Mother

Teens soaked the pillow. She turned it over, and gave herself up to the luxury of a good cry. She must have dropped to sleep. She must have dropped to sleep. She must have dropped to sleep. She must have dropped to sleep. She must have dropped to sleep.

The maid's long, slender red hand shot out. She touched Cathie's forehead with sensitive fingers. "You're not a fever," she said. "It's just that you didn't sleep very well."

Marguerite grunted and poured the coffee into the delicate flowery cup. "A lot you have to take your sleep," she said. "You're not a fever," she said. "It's just that you didn't sleep very well."

Calls on Mother

Cathie sat up quickly, but before she could speak the woman's face changed. Her chin trembled. She said brokenly, "Oh, don't mind my wicked tongue. I'm thinking over my trouble all the long night—thinking of my father."

"Baby? Why, Marguerite, I didn't—"

"No, don't speak of it, please. I shouldn't have said it. And now you'll think me of me. Now you'll know that I—"

And then at Cathie's melting sympathy she broke off and covered her face with her hands. "There—now you know," she whispered, and may you never know that it is the night with your arms empty—"

"It didn't!" Cathie faltered. But Marguerite was beyond words. She nodded and fled. After a while Cathie pined for Continued on Page 17, Column 3

COUNCIL ORDERS MALDEN TO "LIGHT UP" Dorr Says Public Can End Slump

Boston Skyline Looks Good After a Summer in Europe

THE FIRST PEEK at the skyline of Boston was taken by Miss Ivy Shelton, left, above, of East Boston as the liner Samaria steamed up the harbor today inbound from England. Miss Shelton was returning after a three months' tour of England.

A huge building program is relieving unemployment in Ireland, according to Col. Thomas P. Murphy of Boston, who returned today with his family on the Cunard liner Samaria.

Col. Murphy spent several months in Ireland and gave it as his opinion that the government is stable, although "it is unpopular to discuss political matters openly there at present."

The Samaria landed 400 here, most of whom had been touring the British Isles and on the continent during the summer months.

Miss Hester Fay, of Cambridge, and her sister, Elinor, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Fay, returned today for the fall and winter social season, after having been abroad since late in June.

Others on the vessel including Miss J. Irene Mulleady, a Boston school teacher who was abroad for three months, and Miss Ivy Shelton of East Boston, who spent 12 weeks in England.

The picture at the right is of Miss Irene Mulleady, Boston school teacher, returning after a summer spent in Europe. She is holding a dog mascot that she purchased abroad. Good luck has been with her since its purchase. (Staff photos.)

Finds Burglars' Den in the Chestnut Hill Woods

The fastness of Hammond's Woods, Chestnut Hill, gave up today a burglars' lair—and with it two desperate characters.

True—they were only 14 years old and were trapped most ignominiously when they had thought their lookout was keen, but they were desperately proud of their accomplishments.

Indeed, but, built in the woods, and later at Newton police headquarters, the boys admitted one burglary, but police suspect them of eight others in the district and are looking for a Waterbury boy believed to be "in" on the game.

Patrolman Joseph Smith of Newton found the hut after receiving a "tip."

Under the floor he found a revolver, 25 cartridges and an old coin and the boys admitted stealing them, as well as a silver elephant and a silver compass, from the home of Fred Lunn, 180 Dudley rd., Oak Hill, Newton.

REDUCE BOSTON DAY R. R. FARES

Mayor Curley was advised today that as a result of his suggestion round trip rates, slightly less than single fares have been arranged by the railroads from all points in New England for Boston Day, Wednesday, Sept. 17.

Also special excursions will be run from Springfield, Worcester and other large cities of the Commonwealth. The mayor called a conference with representatives of the New Haven, Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine railroads, and asked them to take some action on special rates.

To provide for the throng expected to visit the city on Boston Day, the mayor has ordered the health department to arrange for 25 temporary relief, first aid and convalescence stations.

Today, in the real estate column of the classified ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investments.

Waltham Forester to Fight Ouster

Court action will be taken to secure reinstatement of Chester Adams as foreman of the forestry department of Waltham. It was declared today by Adams' counsel, Atty. George F. Drury, in preparation for such action, Atty. Drury today sent a demand for such reinstatement to Mayor Patrick J. Dunn and City Forester Warren M. Ryan. Adams was demoted from foreman to laborer in the forestry department.

Pickpocket Busy

The first case of pocket picking in the Everett station in many weeks was brought to the attention of police in that city last night, when Arthur Brandt, of 131 Bucknam st., that city, complained that $50 and a wallet had been taken.

$100 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Each week $100 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quickly. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best, 20 $5 prizes and $2 prizes for each of the 20 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

MERCHANT IS OPTIMISTIC FOR FUTURE

Buying Strike Blamed by President of Raymond's for Depression

Frank I. Dorr, president of Raymond's, Inc., said today that the period of depression, if there has been any, has ended and that the upward trend is everywhere in evidence.

He said business has suffered from a "buyers' strike," and that the public held the whip hand in such a situation if they could be made to realize it. He said good times are here and have been here and was most optimistic of the future.

"We have just passed through a buyers' strike," said Mr. Dorr. "The savings banks are stuffed with millions which ought to be put in circulation, or a large part of it, at any rate."

"If folks buy, the money is put to work, and that means more jobs. If no suits are bought, no more suits will have to be made, and that means unemployment."

"On October 25, 1929, deposits in Massachusetts savings banks totaled $1,053,798. On June 30, 1930, the total of savings deposits in this state was $2,053,000, an increase of about $300,000."

'L' TICKET GOOD 'IF YOU HOWL'

The obsolete 6-cent Elevated car tickets, eliminated by creation of the five-cent fare zones, are still good, Pres. Michael R. O'Brien of the Medford board of aldermen announced today.

As a result of a number of complaints he received, Pres. O'Brien made an investigation in which he learned the tickets will be accepted if the passenger insists on presenting them.

Following complaints from a number of Medford citizens that Elevated operators would not accept the tickets, Pres. O'Brien gathered up several he possessed. He boarded buses on three different lines and presented the tickets, which in each case were refused. On his insistence that they be taken, and his refusal to pay a five-cent cash fare, the operators eventually accepted them.

Pres. O'Brien quoted one operator as saying he had been instructed to accept the ticket only if the passengers "made a howl."

Miss Harriet Buden of 37 Calhoun ave., Everett, reported one home he was evaded and refused to accept a ticket.

MOVE TO BLOCK WOODCOCK TALK

Despite the United States Civil Service Commission order prohibiting presidential appointees and other federal employees engaging in election campaigns, U. S. Dist. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr will deliver a radio address on behalf of William M. Butler Saturday night. Atty. Tarr declared today his declaration came simultaneously with filing of another prohibition enforcement.

This protest, the second in 30 days to Atty-Gen. William D. Mitchell, sent by seven prominent Greater Boston Republicans, including Mayor Michael R. O'Brien, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., secretary of the Boston Citizens' Committee for the Prizes of War, Russell Coleman, Jr., Mayor of Boston, and Joseph L. Smith.

Their telegram to the attorney general said:

"We are against pre-emptive appointments taking part in elections to be held hereafter. We are for the Fifteenth Amendment and we believe that the citizens of Massachusetts have right to reject any state law without advice from federal officials, we protest against prohibition Commissioner Woodcock speaking in Boston September 15, the eve of the state primary. We urge immediate retraction."

The Civil Service order, according to Dist. Atty. Tarr, will have to be made by radio address set for Saturday night.

Ex-Councillor Scores Mayor Hastings for Economy Move "That Invites Criminals"

By unanimous vote of the City Council, the Malden street and water commission was requested today to restore electric lights in 65 thoroughfares in which they were turned off in an economy move.

The council adopted an order introduced by Councillor George Fingold, who, with former Councillor Charles H. Roy, has been playing a leading role in the fight for restoration of the lights.

Mayor Hastings and the street commission are extending a curial invitation to the criminal element, by leaving streets in darkness, and criminal acts are at their best if they do not immediately remedy the situation," said Fingold.

"By economies to the extent of $100,000, when the city sank $250,000 in the Exchange at last night," hundreds of citizens are being and the Boston Police and firemen are suffering in the fight for their rights."

GIVES ALL TO LITTLE SOLDIER

Children and grownups continued today to pour sunshine into the life of Eleanor Green, the "Little Soldier" of Roxbury. The orphanage with which the five-year-old girl is facing life, despite a pain-racked body, so won the admiration of Billy and Marie Costello, 19 De Wolf st., Dorchester, that they turned over their Christmas savings to her.

Marie had heard her mother speak of Eleanor, and early yesterday morning when Mrs. Costello spoke, she found both Marie and Billy missing from their beds.

IT OPENED BANK
Going to the kitchen she found the little sitting on the table trying to open their bank with a can opener.

"We're giving it to Eleanor, the poor little kid," said Billy.

"What are you going to do about Santa Claus?" his mother asked.

"Oh," said Billy, "I won't need any toys this year because I won't have much time to play. I'm going to school, you know."

"And we can start saving all over again," chimed in Marie.

And so the savings of Billy and Marie Costello, all in pennies, was added to the fund.

Little Eleanor Green was happy on her fifth birthday, which came yesterday, in spite of her illness and her gratitude was eloquently expressed when she said to her mother:

War Department to Build One of the Most Up-to-Date Camps in Country

Camp Devens is to be made one of the most modern training camps in the country.

All of the 112 wooden buildings here are soon to be razed and replaced by modern, permanent structures on order of the war department. It was learned today.

About most of them revolve the cherished recollections of thousands of New England men housed here during the training days of the war. The historic houses, center of social activities at the camp for many years, is probably the most widely remembered.

Some permanent construction is already under way at Devens, but not until today, when it was learned that bids for contracts to wreck the buildings now standing had been received, was it known that all of the antiquated structures are to be replaced.

The bids for buildings containing 1,764,000 board feet of lumber, 10,000 feet of steel main water pipes and 500 radiators and other fixtures were opened by Lieut.-Col. Albert T. Rich of the First Corps Area. They had been privately solicited.

Not all of the buildings were bid for and for the balance a lease there was only one bidder, the Chambers Wrecking Company of Clinton.

Enemies of Mayor Circulate Petition; Ashes and Garbage Charges Are Revived

Aroused to wrath by a movement seeking his recall, Mayor John J. Whalen of Chelsea to-day denounced his traducers and organized his forces for a bitter battle.

While the identity of those who started circulating the papers was being concealed, Mayor Whalen said, "I have not seen the petitions, but I have been told they were for weeks that they were to be circulated."

"I believe this thing has been done by disgruntled, special privilege seekers who have created last fall in a hectic campaign."

Thrills Galore Provided for Great Throngs as Brockton Fair Goes On ROUGH RIDERS OF THE WESTERN PLAINS have nothing on this group of state troopers, who put on a performance at the Brockton Fair that had them spectators gasping. The rough riders are shown as they entered the arena.

PRIZE WINNING DOG, Tell Von Vogel, a German shepherd dog, owned by R. W. Vogel of Seymour, Ct., seems to like the attention he is getting from one of his admirers, Miss Constance Davis of Brockton. Can you blame him?

SOME OF THE LAUGHS of the fair's first day were provided, by "Lily," a bear who can do about anything, including riding a bicycle. Emilie Palenberg of Clinton, Ct. is shown here as she puts her pet through his antics.

DRIVER HURT AT BROCKTON FAIR

Brockton, Sept. 23.—The first accident since the opening of the Brockton Fair occurred in the first horse race today when Hal Treach, driver of Miss MacTye, was thrown from his sulky and knocked unconscious.

The accident took place in the first lap of a mile race for three-year-olds.

Miss MacTye and Sam Brewer were trotting almost side by side when the gelding broke, and the wheels of his sulky locked with those of the mare, throwing her driver to the track.

Irwin was revived shortly, and announced his intention of resuming his place in a sulky later.

Yesterday's opening day, was children's day, and 20,000 of them took advantage of it.

There was a flag raising, after which the children followed their idol, Bob Emery, in the parade to the flag, "Big Brother" being tastefully arrayed in white yachting cap, blue double-breasted coat, and flared trousers with a cane.

Then came a pageant of the white and colored gowns of the little girls, together with the hoops they wore, standing out in pleasing contrast to the greenward of Robinson's Oval, inside the race track.

MALDEN OUSTS GANG OF FOUR GUNMEN

Every Member of Police Department Involved in the Hunt; One Escapes

In a hunt that involved almost every member of the Malden police department on that shift, four men in a New York automobile, believed to have intended taking a Malden youth "for a ride," were driven out of Malden early today.

A fifth man who had been in the car, fled when he saw police talking with the other four.

A telephone tip that the Malden youth was being sought by five gunmen who intended putting him out of the way, was received at Malden headquarters.

Plain clothes men finally located a New York car and took the quarry to the station and searched them vainly for weapons. On their agreement to leave the city they were released and escorted to the boundary.

The Malden youth intended as the gangsters' victim is understood to have failed to divide $3500 derived from a deal.

Auto Rates Boost Should Be Delayed Pending Probe

Governor Allen Should Act

The State Commissioner of Insurance shortly will approve a new system of rates increasing the cost of liability insurance to the automobilists of this State by more than a million dollars.

The automobilists are now paying the private insurance corporations in excess of $20,000,000 a year for a form of insurance which was imposed upon them by the Legislature and which they are allowed the discretion neither to accept nor reject. They must accept it, else they forfeit the right to operate their automobiles, to use the highways which are constructed by the public and which were designed for the convenience of all.

The system itself is not only arbitrary, it is undemocratic and unprogressive.

In its scheme of operation, it is equally faulty and imperfect. It levies a tax, say of $15 upon a resident of Templeton, and the beaten path of heavy auto traffic, and requires a resident of Chelsea to pay $45 for the right to employ the same type of car. It takes no account of the fact that $6,000 cars a day pass through Chelsea, from the Templeton and the other isolated communities, yet compel the people of Chelsea to incur the expenses of their own increased liability to injury and death.

It sets up a political rivalry which is inimical to the solidarity of the State as a whole, because, as everyone knows, the most exacting and indefensible rates are charged against Democratic municipalities like the city of Boston, which is to bear the brunt of the latest exactions.

We had supposed that the purpose of the Massachusetts Constitution was to make all laws "proportional"; that the purpose of the founders, as the outcome of their successful struggle against unjust taxation, was to establish a system which forever would fall upon all without impartiality.

Why the People Will Again Nominate and Elect Foley

William J. Foley will be re-nominated and re-elected District Attorney because the people of Suffolk County approve the two essential qualifications which he has demonstrated as their prosecuting officer.

He has been an aggressive protector of criminals of all brands, of the dog ringer, the armed bandit, the racketeer. He has not denied the knee to the political bosses behind the scenes or to this class of people in this community whom Roosevelt typified "the malefactors of great wealth" so intimidated with their power and prestige they would cripple and defy the law. The rich and the poor have had exactly the same treatment in his office. The "boss" he has recognized in the people.

He has shown, too, that a public prosecutor can be humanely a people's counsel. It is astonishingly to his credit that the thousands of cases which have reached his office have not seen corresponding thousands of unfortunate persons marched away to jails and prisons.

With the aid of a voluntary committee of respected citizens he has sorted out these cases, weeded out the immature from the hardened, unregenerate criminals, given them a chance to redeem themselves and to become again worthy members of their families and respectable members of society. Foley has envisioned his duty as one not entirely of punishment but as one of reform and of even handed justice.

Mr. Mulhern, his Democratic opponent in the primary, has made intemperate accusations. These ill-founded charges and complaints can be traced to the heat of the campaign and to his inexperience. There was plenty of work for him to continue to do well in the Senate before seeking another office which is being capably and honestly administered.

An Example Needed

Much Can Be Done to Aid the Return of Prosperity

Everything that government and business, collectively and individually, can do to reduce unemployment ought to be done, and that quickly.

Much can be done before winter sets in. Instead of reducing the armed forces of the United States, they should be promptly recruited—army, navy and marine corps—to the full strength authorized for peace time.

Instead of curtailing the postal service in city, town and country, its facilities everywhere should be utilized to the utmost. Instead of slowing up the building program for the navy, it should be speeded up, for naval ships can be built more economically now than later.

Instead of adhering to a building program for housing the army that will require a decade or more to complete, a new building program for this purpose should be adopted as soon as Congress convenes and rushed to completion within the next few years.

Instead of reducing the number of skilled employes at government navy yards, all now on the rolls should be kept there and every effort made to find new work to keep them occupied.

Now is the time for government everywhere to practice what it preaches to business and increase the number of the employed instead of adding to the ranks of the unemployed. And now is the time for the administration at Washington to set an example for the government in the several states, and offer encouragement to business everywhere, by talking less and doing more to relieve unemployment and hasten the return of normal prosperity.

Thrift Clocks

Won't Work Without Pay

French thrift has recently been exemplified by a new invention—the savings bank clock. As an ingenious method of teaching the value of money to children or others, it seems hard to beat.

The clock winds itself automatically once a day, provided you put a franc in the slot. You cannot wind it yourself. Thus you have your choice of saving a franc a day or not knowing the time.

Some American firm might put that on the market here. It would be a good thing to have in every American family. We are a wasteful people, and throw away more in a day than the French do in a year. A nickel or a dime is too small for most of us to think about. But a nickel or a dime a day, put in a bank every month, even runs into real money.

The thrift clock, by all means, "It is the only kind it pays you to watch.

TIME TO GET BACK TO WORK

By NELSON HARDING

We think Prosperity has had
An overlong vacation,
And should be getting back to work
Without much hesitation.

For several months it's loafed around
And lapsed into stagnation,
But now it's time to hurry back
With renewed animation.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 12.—Write some more of those details of yourself, the most intimate the "better" postscript, a beautiful lady and thus bludgeoned into it on a black, melancholy day, here goes! I read my home town paper daily although there are scarcely any names I know any more.

The cook's name is Kathryn, the maid's name and the chauffeur Fred. All are German. Furnishing an apartment costs three times what I expect, and it still looks shabby. I like this slice of ivory cheese for breakfast and floating in the dim.

I read the American and World in the morning and Telegram and Sun at night. I buy almost every periodical. I read the Blind George on a Bryant Park corner. I wrap one leg around the other at a typewriter and constantly reach out, lift up something on the desk and put it down.

I'm depressed visiting hotels where I once lived. A clock on my desk tells the time in all parts of the world at any minute. For no reason I often look to see what time it is on the Canary Islands. My hair is sandy gray. My dog sits in corners on one hip.

I am a sentimentalist except where money is concerned. The only mother I ever knew was a grandmother who reared me. My own mother died when I was a child in arms. I have a charge account at Cartier's and in 10 years it has totaled $25 for silver polish and repairing a button hook. Others. All scandal mongering is malicious and malicious persons will invariably lie. I never saw anyone of film importance drunk in Hollywood. I had two nicknames, "Dunk" and "Spinkler". I'm particularly fond of old people. The only person I wish to see in prison isn't yet. Some of my most biting friendships are with penitents on newspapers. I ride an hour and walk an hour in different rooms of New York newspaper.

rain or shine, and have for seven years. I have a sister living in Kansas City.

My sole extravagance is ties, pajamas, shirts and socks that are never used but packed away. I would not part with them, but could not use them all if I lived 200 years. All of which is damnable selfish.

I listen to Floyd Gibbons on the radio when possible. I rarely look at my copy after it leaves the typewriter. When I do I want to write it over again. I cannot write double space and my articles with hurried corrections are the despair of a spry office.

It infuriates for anyone to touch my newspapers before reading them or bother anything on my desk. I have been at it too long to be sensitive to criticism about writing. About everything else I am super-sensitive. I sometimes have two and three manicures a week and then go a year without them.

My wife writes the prettiest hand I ever saw. Nor have I seen any chirography like it. The three cities where I find writing easiest are New York, Los Angeles and Paris. I work best in artificial light. The book I enjoyed most this year is "Seed," by Charles G. Norris. The show at which I laughed loudest is "Flying High." I am a sucker for pop corn balls.

I wouldn't stand on the roof of the Chrysler building and—things go black thinking about it—look down for a fortune. I usually awaken at 5 a. m. for an hour and think of the dandiest topics to write, but how banal they are when I try them out! I am always in a flutter over something I lose and immediately find. The only expense I know about are those I have befriended.

My wife has never seen me cry. I sit taut in airplanes but haven't any fear. I drink from six to ten glasses of water at each meal. When angry a mustache of perspiration pops out on my upper lip. "Mars" is a small mole on my left shoulder. I cannot spell occasion without first looking it up. Any other questions?

Aristocracy in Africa

It is as Real as Any Other

ARISTOCRATIC "EGYPTIAN FACE" OF A YOUNG AFRICAN RULER

These two African types show that among inhabitants of the dark continent there are differences in race, breeding and "aristocracy," to use a word of which we are very fond, as great as among the white races of Europe or America.

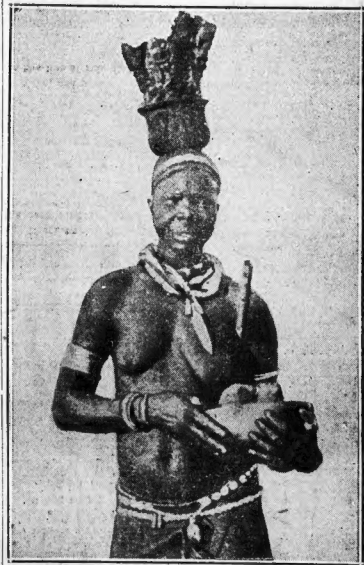

The upper picture shows a young African ruler, Kisilekoro. This young man is a sultan in the Tanganyika territory, forcibly taken by Great Britain from the Germans after the great war.

It is interesting to study the face of this young ruler, which is more like that of an ancient Egyptian than a modern African, and probably going far back, many centuries, perhaps, in the line of rulership.

A great Ethiopian king once ruled over all Egypt, conquering up and down the Nile. His blood might be in this young man.

His lips, eyes, chin, jaw, nose are such as you might find in an old picture of lion hunting on an Egyptian monument.

The British, who understand the management of colonies better than the Germans, and better than any other nation, including ours, encourage among their subject people leaders like this one. They put them on the payroll, honor them when they come to visit London, lodge them in a palace, show them big battleships. And the rulers of "inferior races" go back to tell their people, "Stick to the British; they have the power; no use fighting THEM."

AFRICAN LADY, NOT SO ARISTOCRATIC

Contrast with this sample of aristocracy the African young lady in the lower picture. A "Kanya bella" she represents a lower African physical and intellectual development, although VERY much higher than many of the lower tribes.

She is not carrying a basketful of vegetables on her head—that is a hat. She wears her fortune in the shape of jewelry, silver, perhaps brass, on her arms and around her waist. She is one of the endless millions that for millions of years have lived in Africa, fighting the tropical sun, wild animals, poisonous snakes.

The marvel is NOT that they are no more highly developed, but that they have been able to survive and maintain "a human race" on the continent of Africa.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"
Instinct Weakens as Well as Glands

ONE MAY PRESUME, through the experiment has not yet been tried, that rats could be kept both small and young for a time well exceeding the normal life of their species by prolonging the sex distaste.

It would certainly be interesting to try a similar experiment on human beings, but it would not be easy, and it is a child in arms. I have a charge account at Cartier's and in 10 years it has totaled $25 for silver polish and repairing a button hook. Others. All scandal mongering is malicious and malicious persons will invariably lie. I never saw anyone of film importance drunk in Hollywood. I had two nicknames, "Dunk" and "Spinkler". I ride an hour and walk an hour in different rooms of New York newspaper.

"gland" experiments, although most glands have no connection with rejuvenation.

Stefanow was the first to attack the problem. He reasoned as follows: The most obvious sign of old age in mammals is the loss of sexual power and the failure of the sex-distaste.

We know that the ductless glands together form an interlocking system. If the reproductive hormone falls, will not the others suffer? And will they not be stimulated to renewed activity if a new supply is provided.

Young planarians work, for instance, will die a good deal sooner than old if put in solutions of poison which will kill even the old worms within twelve hours; but in very weak solutions though all the old worms die after a week or so, young ones can survive indefinitely.

We find a rough parallel to this chemical behavior in the different nervous resistance of young and old among ourselves.
